AFSIC – Investing in Africa confirms 300+ excellent speakers

AFSIC - Investing in Africa, scheduled for May 5th -7th 2020 in London, has this month confirmed over 300 speakers including a huge range of Africa's most important investors, dealmakers and business leaders. AFSIC 2020 is focused on profiling Africa's most exciting investment opportunities and creating multiple business and networking opportunities for investors. With ABSA Corporate Investment Bank and Moodys heading up an impressive group of supporting sponsors, AFSIC 2020 promises again to be one of the most important African Investment events held globally.

Since its inception eight years ago, AFSIC is fast becoming one of the major conduits of investment into Africa and delegates can participate in the origination and completion of real investment transactions across Africa. The agenda is specifically investment focused, and predominantly comprises presentations by several of the most experienced and successful asset management firms investing in Africa, as well as business leaders running some of Africa's most exciting growth companies with focussed streams highlighting investment opportunities in Fintech, Financial Services, Infrastructure, Energy, Education, Agriculture and Real Estate.

The dynamic conference will be attended by many of the most important global investors into Africa and delegates will be able to attend structured presentation sessions complemented by an array of networking events, business match-making meetings, workshops and country focussed sessions, offering multiple opportunities to network and develop strong business relationships with investors, financial intermediaries and African business leaders.

A significant supporting role will be played by the British Government's DFID, FSD Africa and CDC emphasising the increasing level of support and participation in Africa's growth opportunities by global development institutions.
