

Mining and Minerals industry leaders to gather in Jordan to drive investment, innovation and sustainability in the industry.

Officially Co-hosted with the Jordanian Ministry of Energy and Mineral Resources, the 4th edition of The Arab Mining & Minerals (AMM) Conference will be held in Amman on the 23rd-24th September at the Intercontinental Hotel. Focusing on innovation for a sustainable future, AAM will showcase the outstanding potential on mining, minerals and materials in the untapped Middle East & North African regions.

Arab Mining and Minerals has quickly established itself as an essential platform for governments, geological surveys, global mining companies and resource investors to do business in the Middle East and Arab countries of Africa. The conference is dedicated to assisting Arab nations in showcasing their prospective mineral wealth and encouraging mining development in a way that is sustainable and beneficial to the citizens of all nations within the Arab World.

Jordan has been specifically chosen to host the 4th edition of AAM, promoting the outstanding opportunities for economic diversification in the country. Exploration and production of minerals and metals can be a cornerstone of income and job creation for the Kingdom in years to come.
